

ConnectedLiving Continues at Senior Communities

Twenty-five (25) residents of Greensboro Housing Authority's Hall Towers and five (5) Stoneridge residents became the second ConnectedLiving graduates at ceremonies held at the senior communities on July 11, 2013. Friends, family members, residents and staff celebrated the accomplishment of the graduates.

Latte Dawkins, ConnectedLiving Ambassador and instructor for the program, presented certificates of achievement to each resident who completed the program.

Hall Towers resident Rayde McKinnon and Latte Dawkins of ConnectedLiving

Stoneridge resident Phaysal Ross and Dawkins

Hall Tower Graduates – Twenty-five Hall Towers' residents receive Certificates of Achievement upon completion of the Connected Living Program.

ConnectedLiving provides training, a user-friendly platform and interactive activities and learning opportunities for residents of senior living communities. Participants become familiar with keyboards, social media and various computer programs and games. GHA is the only North Carolina housing authority providing this service to its residents.